POWERFUL SERMONS BEING PREACHED

M'LENDON REVIVAL BEGAN WITH LARGE CONGREGATION

DRAWS ATTENTION

Sermon On Sunday Morning was On "What Hinders Prayer" It was Splendid.

Rev. Baxter F. McLendon's sermon at St. John's Methodist church last night was on the subject of "Personal Work." The church was filled to overflowing and the congregation showed much interest. A splendid choir has been organized and the singing adds much to the services.

One of the first things the evangelist said last night was that he was going to have a revival in Anderson in spite of the devil and everything else.

His sermon was from Proverbs 11:30, "He that winneth souls is wise." Mr. McLendon said:

"If you walk down the streets of Anderson and ask the men you meet, 'Who is the wise man?' a great variety of answers would be obtained. The lawyer, the banker, the mill man, farmer and the politician might be asked and everyone would give a different answer, but when you turn away from man with all these discordant answers and look up to the face of God and say, 'Who is the wise man?' comes thundering down from the world of light, 'He that winneth souls is wise.' One reason that we should win souls is because Jesus Christ has commanded us to do it. Matthew 28:19, 'Go ye into all the world and make disciples of all nations.' That commandment was followed by every follower of Jesus Christ in every age of the church history. Every person that claims to be a Christian and is not winning men for Christ is disobedient to the Lord. Jesus said, 'Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you.' 'This was the business of Jesus Christ himself; to seek and save the lost. There was just one thing He lived for, one thing He suffered for, one thing He died for, and that was to save the lost. 'Is that your purpose? Is that what you live for? Is that the passion of your life? If not, what right have you to pose yourself off on this poor old world as a Christian? Jesus walked down the banks of the Sea of Galilee and said: 'Come and follow me and I will make you great fishermen, no great politicians, no great business men, no, but I will make you fishers of men, and they said goodbye pa, goodbye fishing smack, goodbye old seaweed, goodbye nets, we are going to preach the gospel. 'The Lord in 1st Corinthians 1:26, 27, 28 the instruments that he used: '1st. Not many wise men after the flesh. That means the fellow that hasn't much above his collar button. '2nd. The foolish things of the world. That takes in the majority of you Anderson folks. '3rd. The weak things of the world, and here the evangelist impersonated David and Goliath. He said that David returned from the fight with a giant's head and four rounds of ammunition left over. Then he told how God had mightily used the base and despised things of the world. He asked the question, Why it was that God went to the town of Bennettsville and put his hand on a cold-blooded, vicious gambler and called him to preach the gospel? It was because God's ways are not man's ways. He told the Christian people in the congregation that an awful responsibility lies at their door and that God would hold them responsible not only for what they did but also for what they did not do. He closed the sermon with the beautiful world painting of how the righteous shall shine as the brightness of the firmament and they that turn many to righteousness as the stars; forever and ever. his campaign here Sunday morning by saying that he didn't care a rap whether anybody liked the sermons or not, just so he pleased God.

The Reverend McLendon is of a nervous temperament, never still, pulling his hair, twisting his handkerchief, or fingering his notebook all the time. He is down in the aisle one minute, standing on a cushioned chair with both feet the next and then straddle of the pulpit. He has a freedom in the pulpit that is very seldom seen, and if he is not at home, he certainly acts like it.

It seems that he puts every ounce of energy that he has into his sermons. He has a remarkable way of condensing his thoughts into the simplest language. That is evidently one of the secrets of his great success.

Then by his power of impersonation in his sermon Sunday morning on "What Hinders Prayer," he showed how Isaiah went to Hezekiah and told him of his coming death, and did it in such a unique way that people were laughing one minute and crying the next.

In his sermon he showed the many things that hinder one's prayers from going through. One of the first things enumerated was the selfishness of the motive that lies back of the prayer; the next was veneered over and covered up and unconfessed sins.

The sermon showed how people have God under complete subordination to pleasure, family, politics, business and other worldly interests. To illustrate the evangelist got down on the floor to show how people had God down there, and then he stood up on a high chair and with his hand stretched up, showed that all these things were above God.

STRONG ENDORSEMENT FROM BENNETTSVILLE

LETTER FROM MR. J. P. GIBSON PRAISES REV BAXTER F. M'LENDON.

IS A SOUL WINNER

Has Known Him From Early Boyhood—Tells of His Life Before Conversion.

In reference to Rev. Baxter F. McLendon, who is conducting a series of meetings here, the following letter has been received, which is self-explanatory:

Bennettsville, S. C.

"The Intelligencer: 'As my young friend, Rev. Baxter F. McLendon of this city, is now in Anderson conducting a series of religious services, with your permission I will write a brief letter concerning him and his work.

'Some of the people will not like some things McLendon says; they will criticize adversely, but I beg that judgments be withheld until they have heard it of the evidence.

'Baxter McLendon was born in Marlboro county. His parents, who are true, genuine godly people, live near the city. His father is real Scotch-Irish and one of the best men I ever knew. Baxter early in life felt that he should preach the gospel, but refused to yield and descended far into the depths of sin and the cess-pools of iniquity. He even kept and fought game chickens and bull dogs on Sunday. He ran a blind (open) tiger in Bennettsville, shot two or three men, was an expert poker player.

'He was present and saw his struggle when under conviction, and saw him when he finally surrendered and accepted Christ as his Saviour. He at once turned his back on his old comrades, their habits and evil associations, but has ever been their true friends and has helped many of them into the kingdom.

'I have known Mac since his early boyhood and have closely watched his career since his conversion, and I declare that he has been true, straight and loyal to man and God. He speaks the truth he has been divinely called to preach to a lost world and he is arousing sinners, backsliders and hypocrites as no other evangelist in the South is doing.

'McLendon's labors as an evangelist are being blessed by God, and the results from his preaching are greater perhaps than any Southern evangelist. He is the best paid evangelist in the South today and he gives his money freely and liberally to the poor, needy and helpless. Before McLendon leaves Anderson he will have more friends than any man in your city. He is absolutely fearless and oblivious to all that people say and think about him. He is endeavoring to save lost men and women and dig up sin in high and low places, calls a 'spade a spade' and trusts God.

'The good people, all the people in Bennettsville and Marlboro county, fully endorse McLendon, and I trust The Intelligencer will give its efforts to benefit the people of your city and community.

'Sincerely and truly,

'J. Press Gibson."
